

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a method for producing an image, the surface of a three-dimensional image of a subject is segmented, and the three-dimensional image is stored with a volume dataset. The volume dataset is then transformed such that the segmented surface is transformed into a plane. Lastly, the transformed surface of the three-dimensional image is represented with a slice of predetermined thickness inside and/or outside the three-dimensional image

CH1\ 4072659.1